Sharon Stone

One can't help but marvel at Sharon Stone's inner confidence. Her bold, controlled demeanor makes her a brilliant vet on the big screen, and her short, bold hairstyle simply mirrors the personality of one of our all-time favorite talents.

What's in her cabinet? It's no surprise that a powerhouse actress like this prefers Pureology's Power Dressing ($17.00; call 1-800-331-1502 for nearest location or log onto www.pureology.com). The perfect style accessory for color treated hair, this product adds volume and shine and can be used as a detailing tool for making pieced out, sexy shapes. Is there any situation this strong, sultry actress can't control?

Alyssa Milano

We will never grow tired of this bewitching young star as she continues to enchant us with style after style. Alyssa Milano's sexy pixie cut can only be topped by one thing—a finishing spray.

What's in her cabinet? Like her witchy counterpart, Alyssa Milano opts for natural hair treatments. To keep her hair in place with a soft, touchable finish, you can find Aubrey Organic's White Camellia and Jasmine Shine Conditioner Spray ($7.25; call 1-800-282-7394 or log onto www.aubrey-organics.com) in her own personal hair product stock. And would you believe? One of the ingredients is actually witch hazel!

Samaire Armstrong

Here's something worth mentioning from celeb stylist Danielle Curet about the former O.C. stunner, Samaire Armstrong. According to Curet, Samaire is keen on hair sticks like those made by TIGI BedHead ($16.00; call 1-800-256-9391 or log onto www.tigihaircare.com for a salon near you) to clump out the ends and leave it looking piecey. But for a more exaggerated evening look like the one seen on the Christmas segment, Curet got a little creative with a Crayola glitter glue pen. This totally washable glue, which made her hair sparkle and shine, gave the set's Christmas tree a little competition. Samaire loved it so much, we don't doubt that she now keeps a few of those handy in her cabinet!
